To whom it may concern,

I highly recommend Mandi Eberle for the position of an elementary instructor at the University of Mary. During my 120-hour practicum experience in Mrs. Mandi Eberle's first grade classroom, I can attest to the capabilities of Mrs. Eberle as a teacher, mentor, and positive member of the school community.

Under Mrs. Eberle's guidance, I observed how she strove to grow as a teacher each day by putting her students first and being a positive influence in the school. Mrs. Eberle is an excellent mentor for young teachers as she exhibited patience and enthusiasm for helping me to grow as an aspiring teacher during my time under her mentorship. Her commitment to the profession, her ability to handle difficult situations with care and concern, and her supportive attitude towards both her students and colleagues recommends her for teaching aspiring educators.

In my time as a practicum student in Mrs. Eberle's classroom, I observed how her skills in organization and timeliness enables her to run a very smooth and productive classroom. Mrs. Eberle displayed understanding, care, and concern for her learners by diversifying her instruction, remaining open to new ideas, and creating an environment of hospitality, support, and commitment to learning.

It is without hesitation that I recommend Mandi Eberle for the position of an elementary education instructor at the University of Mary. Her experience in teaching and shaping young hearts and minds will be a wonderful asset as she teaches future educators. She will no doubt have a positive influence on those who aspire to be effective educators.

Sincerely,

Rachel Henke
